FALL FROM BRIDGE KILLS CONTRACTOR

Prof. Fillerup Employed Near Colonia Dublin. Mexican Drowned.

Colonia Dublin, Mexico, July 4.—Prof. Erastus K. Fillerup fell from a railroad bridge under construction on the Pearson line and was almost instantly killed. During the school vacation he had been working as a carpenter on the bridge. The beam on which he was sitting moved and he fell to the ground, breaking one arm in two places, the other in one place and crushing his skull. The body remained in the position in which it fell until the authorities could be brought from Casas Grandes.

For a number of years Prof. Fillerup occupied a chair in the Juarez state academy. He leaves a wife and a family of children.

In the camp above which Prof. Fillerup was killed, one of the workmen, a Mexican, went into the river to bathe and was drowned. He was in company with a number of his native friends.
